

"One Last Hello"
Vijay Vaidyanathan
USA

I know it's been ages, and I hope that you're well
I hope you're at peace, forgiven yourself
California's cold, those TV shows lied
But so many people, it's easy to hide
There's no one back home, who knows where i've gone,
Can't call me on sundays, saying I should "stay strong"

You told me to hold on, but I've got to let go
Say goodbye to goodbyes, just one last hello

[V2]
I've made a few friends, but they move on a lot
Some of them scare me, that look that they've got
I've seen it before, at the back of your eyes
But I say nothing, leave them living their lives
I should have said something, that night to you,
Should've known what was coming, Yeah, I'm sure I knew!

You told me to hold on, but I've got to let go
Say goodbye to goodbyes, just one last hello

[V3]
Just crazy, they say, what you did was a sin
And I'm tired of explaining, every night since then
I'd run out of options, you'd run out of hope
So you waved your white flag, at the end of a rope
They'll call me a sinner too, but they've got it all wrong
It's the end of a match, that's smoldered too long

You told me to hold on, but I've got to let go
Say goodbye to goodbyes, just one last hello

You told me to hold on, now I'm letting go
Saying goodbye to goodbyes, for just one last hello
Saying goodbye to goodbyes, for just one last hello